

Alumni Newsletter

Issue 4, December 2018

Dear Prem Alumni,

As I write these words my G11 Mathematics HL students are hard at work on a paper 1 examination in room 28 and the walls provide colourful evidence of this morning's World of Mathematics Workshop on Tessellations, Tiling and Kaleidocycles. A perfect moment to reflect on those many other students who have passed through this room and brought it to life with their ideas, explorations, inspiration and conversation. Prem Alumni, wherever you may be in the world and whatever your delights and challenges may be, I hope that you can find some space (small or large; maybe even infinite?) to continue to experience joy in the Mathematics that is all around us. I wish you all the happiness of the season and a new year that brings plenty of smiles and laughter. Do keep in touch, we love to hear your news!

A. Lucy Kyte

We were delighted to hear from one of our Alumni Class of 2013 recently. Zachery Lindsey was a very popular member of our community. An excellent sportsman, and very active in our community service programme. A boarder who acknowledged that although he had a 'love/hate' relationship with living in boarding, it certainly helped his social and emotional growth, and helped him towards achieving his goals to help others.

"I am a fairly recent college graduate from Guilford College in Greensboro, North Carolina where I received my degree in Sports Management and Business. After my graduation in May of 2017, I moved to the Los Angeles area where I worked for a Minor League Hockey Team called the Ontario Reign, which is the Parent team of the NHL's LA Kings. I worked there for about a year as the Assistant, Community Relations, where we saw how the team and the franchise can impact the community for better. Player appearances, auctions, commemorating heros and community leaders.

After my time with the Ontario Reign, I moved up to San Francisco, California where I am now working as an Education Outside Instructor.

I have been able to follow a dream of mine, which was to learn to fly. I started my ground training about 4 months ago, learning about weather, how to communicate with the control tower, how to plan a trip, weight and balance of an aircraft and all the above. I have been flying for about an hour thus far as well. I was able to do my first take off and landing behind the controls. We went up to 3000 ft to see over the San Francisco Bay which was an amazing experience."

It was a great pleasure to have one of our Alumni here with us at Prem on 13th November at our Careers and College Fair. Ben Bultrini was representing University College Utrecht, Netherlands at the Fair, whilst staying in Thailand completing an Internship with the Deutsche Gesellschaft für Internationale Zusammenarbeit (GIZ) GmbH. This organisation provides services in the field of international cooperation for sustainable development. Ben is presently studying for his Master Degree in Environmental Studies at Wageningen University, Netherlands.

Ben was very happy to be back at Prem, and spent time giving tips on university living to our Grade 11 and Grade 12 students.
